Dear Hiring Manager,

I am interested in your Jr. Full Stack JavaScript developer position at Plexxis Software, as advertised on 09/08/2023. I feel with my fantastic education I obtained at the Lethbridge College in Computer Information Technology, alongside my hands-on experience working with a business; I am confident in my ability to contribute a large amount to the Plexxis web development team.

Having graduated and receiving a diploma in Computer Information Technology I possess a comprehensive understanding of web development and related technologies. I am well versed in the following languages: HTML, CSS, C++, C#, Java, JavaScript, PHP, MySQL, Kotlin, and I am well versed with networking and Apache as well. I have acquired these skills with both my education and my personal endeavors. My responsibilities as a technologies sales associate at Staples has provided me further insight into the not only sales aspect of both software and hardware but the ability to communicate complex technical concepts to a diverse audience. I have excellent conflict resolution skills, which was molded by my customer-facing roles, and working with a business to collaborate solutions with a software development team.

I am ecstatic about the opportunity to join Plexxis Software. The company's mission to provide a world-class software solution that unites various aspects of construction subcontracting aligns with my own professional goals and values. I am eager to leverage my skills and knowledge to contribute to the future endeavors of Plexxis.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to contributing to the Plexxis team and am available at any time to discuss how my background and skills align with this role.

Sincerely,

Kobe Smallman
